Do you live here?

Used to about ten years ago. I came back to visit my mother.

Did you get drafted?

Yeah.

Do you like the army?

I hate it. I'm for peace. I didn't want to kill Vietnamese.

We put peace signs on our shirts.

90% of the guys don't do any fighting. I could have gotten a medical discharge, because I have plastic ribs--my guts got blown out once--but the benefits are better if you stay in.

How long do you have to go?

About four months. First I was in Nam, then Korea. It's terrible both places. Lots of guys get court martialed for refusing to obey orders to kill. They get busted in rank. I'm heading back to Dix now.

What are you going to do when you get out?

Go to Rockland Community College

about ten miles from here.

Just then a young Spanish man in civilian clothes came up. The two slapped their hands together.

How are you doing?

What do you think?

Are you in the army too? I asked. Do you know each other?

We've never met, but we're both in the army.

The Spanish brother points to his shoes. "Sure, can't you tell?" His shoes were so black and shiny you could see your face in them.

The bus to New Jersey came. We all shook hands. Peace. Stop the war. Good-bye.
